Cautionary Statement under Federal Securities Laws

The information contained on this website contains "forward-looking statements" within the meaning of the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 that involve risks and uncertainties. You can identify forward-looking statements because they contain words such as "believes", "expects", "may", "would", "should", "seeks", "approximately", "intends", "plans", "estimates", "anticipates" or similar expressions that relate to management's strategy, plans or intentions. All statements management makes relating to its estimated and projected earnings, margins, costs, expenditures, cash flows, growth rates and financial results or to its expectations regarding future industry trends are forward-looking statements. In addition, Global Brass and Copper Holdings, Inc., and its subsidiaries (the "Company"), through our senior management, from time to time makes forward-looking public statements concerning its expected future operations and performance and other developments. These forward-looking statements are subject to known and unknown risks, uncertainties and other factors that may change at any time, and, therefore, actual results may differ materially from those that management expected. Management derives many of its forward-looking statements from its operating budgets and forecasts, which are based upon many detailed assumptions. While management believes that its assumptions are reasonable, management cautions that it is very difficult to predict the impact of known factors, and, of course, it is impossible for management to anticipate all factors that could affect the Company's actual results.

Important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from management's expectations are referred to as "cautionary statements" or "Risk Factors." All forward-looking information on this website is expressly qualified in its entirety by the cautionary statements. Some of the factors that we believe could affect our results include: general economic conditions affecting the markets in which our products are sold; our ability to implement our business strategies, including acquisition activities; our ability to continue implementing our balanced book approach to substantially reduce the impact of fluctuations in metal prices on our earnings and operating margins; shrinkage from processing operations; metal price fluctuations, particularly copper; the condition of various markets in which our customers operate, including the housing and commercial construction industries; our ability to maintain business relationships with our customers on favorable terms; our ability to compete effectively with competitors; limitations on our ability to access raw materials, particularly copper; fluctuations in commodity and energy prices and costs; our ability to maintain sufficient liquidity as commodity and energy prices rise; the effects of industry consolidation or competition in our business lines; operational factors affecting the ongoing commercial operations of our facilities, including technology failures, catastrophic weather-related damage, regulatory approvals, permit issues, unscheduled blackouts, outages or repairs or unanticipated changes in energy costs; supply, demand, prices and other market conditions for our products; our ability to accommodate increases in production to meet demand for our products; our ability to continue our operations internationally and the risks applicable to international operations; government regulations relating to our products and services, including new legislation relating to derivatives; our ability to remediate any material weaknesses in our internal control over financial reporting as we become subject to public company requirements; our ability to realize the planned cost savings and efficiency gains as part of our various initiatives; workplace safety issues; our ability to retain key employees; adverse developments in our relationship with our employees or the future terms of our collective bargaining agreements; rising employee medical costs; environmental costs; our exposure to product liability claims; our ability to maintain cost-effective insurance policies; our ability to maintain the confidentiality of our proprietary information and to protect the validity, enforceability or scope of our intellectual property rights; our limited experience managing and operating a public company; our ability to service our substantial indebtedness; fluctuations in interest rates; and restrictive covenants in our indebtedness that may adversely affect our operational flexibility.

Global Brass and Copper Holdings, Inc. cautions you that the foregoing list of factors may not contain all of the material factors that are important to you. In addition, in light of these risks and uncertainties, the matters referred to in the forward-looking statements contained on this website may not in fact occur. Accordingly, you should not place undue reliance on those statements. Global Brass and Copper Holdings, Inc. undertakes no obligation to publicly update or revise any forward-looking statement as a result of new information, future events or otherwise, except as otherwise required by law.
